

The Department of Theology and the Institute of Environmental Sustainability present:

Religion and Nature Speaker Series

Integral ecologists are environmental scientists, ethicists, experts in religion and nature, and activists who understand that earth's environmental crisis cannot be solved by one group alone. Environmental experts from all fields must work together. This speaker series is part of the 'Francis Project', a collaboration between Loyola University's Department of Theology and the Institute of Environmental Sustainability to encourage an integral understanding of the natural world from the perspectives of both science and religion.

The Green Deen: Muslim Perspectives on Ecology and the Environment

Dr. Marcia Hermansen

LUC Department of Theology

September 12 | 4:00 p.m. - 5:15 p.m.

IES 123/124

Buddhism, Science and Nature

Dr. Hugh Nicholson

LUC Department of Theology

October 17 | 4:00 p.m. - 5:15 p.m.

IES 123/124

Christianity & Mobilizing For Ecological Security

Dr. William French

LUC Department of Theology

November 21 | 4:00 p.m. - 5:15 p.m.

IES 123/124

The Tu Bishvat Seder: A Jewish Liturgy of Nature

Dr. Devorah Schoenfeld

LUC Department of Theology

February 13 | 4:00 p.m. - 5:15 p.m. | IES 123/124

Mitákuye Oyás'ın Indigenous Spirituality and Youth Activism

Climate Change Conference Roundtable

LUC Institute of Environmental Sustainability

March 13 | 2:45 p.m. - 4:15 p.m. | Damen MPR South

Hindu Goddess Traditions & Ecology: Foundations, Dilemmas, and Contradictions

Dr. Tracy Pintchman

LUC Department of Theology

April 2 | 4:00 p.m. - 5:15 p.m. | IES 123/124

